

FAREWELL TO 1964: A 2-0 WIN, THEN

Barry Bridges shoots us into the lead after an hour in the Boxing Day game against Blackpool. England goalkeeper Tony Waiters had saved everything. Then came his only slip — he failed to hold a cross from Tommy Knox and Bridges flashed the ball into the net.

Three players down . . . and where's the ball? Can you spot it in this goalmouth scramble? Look closely and you'll see it showing just behind Bert Murray's feet.
